

"I have a dream" Speech
By an Academy 6th Grader

I have a dream that there is equality and equal opportunity for all people. I have a dream that everyone will be at peace with themselves and with others. That love is the basis of every conversation, look, and action. That people are given equal opportunity regardless of their race, economic situation, age, gender, parentage, or sexual orientation. I have a dream that war is only found in history book. That everyone is comfortable in his or her body, mind, and soul. That people will not deny who and what they are. That it will be socially acceptable to shout who you are to everyone. That jealousy is non-existent.

I have a dream that love is what we all have for each other, that there is no gossip or hurting each other. Even when we do hurt each other in my world the reason behind it is always love. And I hope that the victims of this hurt can see that. Even when our life is falling apart we can see the good side of things. When we are being criticized we know that they are just trying to help us.

I have a dream that we are all respectful of each other, each other's property, and the environment around us. That the idea that "humans are above everything else therefore we can do as we wish," is no longer even a thought in our minds. That global warming is something we never have to worry about again. That our planet is no longer taken for granted.

I have a dream that there is no longer crime in our world. That everyone realizes that life is too short to spend our whole life getting revenge or acquiring money in some illegal fashion.

I have a dream that money is no longer the goal of human life. That we end poverty through fair wages. That people get over the "almighty dollar" and give to others who are more needy than they.

I have a dream that healthcare is given to everyone even those who can't afford it. And there is more research on diseases like cancer, Parkinson, Alzheimer's, Dermatomyocitis, Spinal Muscular Atrophy, and many other. That people remember that these conditions are real and remember that these people aren't to blame.

I have a dream that my dream isn't a dream and people fight for their dreams. That everyone supports one another's dreams and doesn't laugh or scoff at another's dreams. That we fight for others dreams because a helping hand is truly supporting someone 110%.

I have a dream that people don't keep dreams, dreams. They turn them into reality.
